will always be prime real estate. Remember it will also carry a high price tag to match its very sought after location. The serene beauty of having the Caribbean Sea at your doorstep, or the convenience of a cool early morning walk in the sand, or the appeal of "walking out your door" to the beach and its many available activities and are always paramount.

The Cayman Islands boasts plenty of beautiful scenery and for those having "ocean view" atop their list of real estate needs, canal front homes & condos are very much in high demand even for the most seasoned investors. Canal front homes give you the same look and feel of ocean front living, while keeping their pricing at a more attainable level without giving up any quality or top of the line must haves. You will still enjoy those panoramic views from your canal front home or condominium with proximity to Seven Mile Beach never being far away and boasting far less traffic...always a welcome plus.

Commercial property attracts those who may wish to have a more substantial presence in mind. Whether your needs are business based or as an investment the islands offer a gracious inventory of established properties available in the commercial arena.
